THE SHIP IN THE STORM.

By Mrs. Garland Jones, (see Houston.)

And there rose a great storm of wind, and the waves bent into the ship so that it was now full. And he rose, and rebuked the wind and said unto the sea, "Peace, be still." And the wind ceased and there was a great calm. Mark, 14, 37-39.

Lake no placid scene of beauty
Starry skies a watch is keeping
Over the boat, where worn and weary,
Christ of Nazareth is sleeping.

Could a storm disturb these waters,
With their freight of "Life and Light?"
Could an awful dark intruder
Burst upon this glorious night?

See, the sky grows dark and threatening
Hark! the distant thunder's roar;
All is now a scene of terror,
Who can reach the far-off shore?

Now the boat is tossed and driven,
And the waves are rising high;
"We will perish," we are whispering—
"Save us," the disciples cry.

He is there—this hush of sorrow—
Can he hear their cry? Yes, and will.
Don't you hear his voice commanding:
"Peace, ye tempests; waves, be still!"

Ah! the storm, so wild and furious,
In a moment ceases to rage;
They were men who, sinking, called him
And he gladly came to save.

This is it we are sometimes saying—
"Let us stipulate with Life's foe."
All is as quiet as a peaceful
At the lake of Galilee.

But how soon a storm approach!
How it matters, how it rages!
And our little boat is sinking—
Sinking "neath those cruel waves."

But when tempests roar us gather,
We may call him "our Lord";
And we too, shall hear him whisper:
"Peace, ye tempests; waves, be still!"

"Loud'st Knott," Trigg Co., Ky.

TO BE OR KNOTT TO BE.

Says Reuben Knott unto his fair,
In laughing language burning hot,
"Matilda, do you love me dear?"
Says she, "I love you Knott."

"Oh, say not so," again he cried,
"Oh, say that you will marry me!"
Says she, "I will wed you Knott,"
"Oh, cruel fair, to serve me not!"

"I love you well, you Knott,"
"I cannot wed you, Knott," she said,
For then I should be a knott."

A light breaks in on Reuben's mind,
As in his arms she's got;
She looks gleefully in his face
And says, "Pray kiss me, Knott."

"BUSS ME MORE."

Once upon an evening dim,
I gave her a paroxysm
Kiss, and called her my little lass—
Previous name, level of rose.

And she was a darling creature,
Full of speech, and full in feature;
But again, you couldn't teach her,
For she had been there before—
And only murmured:
"Buss me more."

Anybody can catch a cold now.
The trouble is to let go, like the man Who caught the bear. We advise readers to keep a bottle of Dr.
Bull's Cough Syrup handy.

Fail Farming in Dakota.

(Brooklyn Eagle.)

"Yes, sir," resumed the Dakota
man, as the crowd of agriculturalists drew back from the bar and seated themselves around a little table, "yes, sir, we do things rather on a sizable scale. I've seen a man on one of our big farms start out in the spring and plow a straight furrow until fall.
Then he turned round and harvested
it."

"Carry his grub with him?" asked a Brooklyn farmer who raised cabbage on the outskirts.

No, sir. They follow him up with a steam tiller and have relays of men to change plows for him. We have some big farms up there, gentlemen.
A friend of mine owned one on which he had to give a mortgage, and I pledge you my word, the mortgage was due on one end before they could get it recorded at the county. You see it was laid in of counties."

There was a murmur of astonishment, and the Dakota man continued:
"I got a letter from a man who lives in my orchard, just before I left home, and it had been three weeks getting to the dwelling house, though it traveled day and night."

"Distances are pretty wide up there, aren't they?" inquired a New England agriculturalist.

"Reasonably, reasonably," replied the Dakota man. "And the worst of it is, it breaks up families so. Two years ago I saw a whole family prostrated with grief. Women yelling, children howling and dogs barking.
One of my men had his camp struck packed on seven four-mule teams and he was around bidding everybody
good bye."

"Where was he going?" asked
a Gravesend man.

"He was going half-way across the farm, to feed the pigs," replied the Dakota man.

"Did he ever get back to his family?"

"It isn't time for him yet," returned the Dakota gentleman. "Up there we send young married couples to milk the cows, and their children bring home the milk."

"I understand you have fine mines
up that way," ventured a Jamaica planter.

"Yes, but we only use the quartz
for fencing," said the Dakota man, testing the blade of his knife with his thumb, preparatory to whetting it on his boot. "It won't pay to crush it because we can make more money on wheat. I put in 8,900 townships of wheat last spring."

"How many acres would that be?"

"We don't count by acres. We count by townships and counties. My yield was $68,000,000 on wheat alone,
and I'm thinking of breaking up from 80 to 100 more counties next season."

"How do you get the help for such extensive operations?" asked the New

Utneet man.

"Oh, labor is cheap," replied the Dakota man. "You can get all you want for from $18 to $47 a day. In fact I never paid over $48."

"Is land cheap?"

"No, land is high. Not that it costs anything, for it don't but under the laws of the Territory you have got to take so much or none. I was in luck. Had a friend a Yankee who got a bill through the Legislature allowing me to take 420,000 square miles, which is the smallest farm there, though it is—"

"Look here," said the bartender,
as the Eastern husbandman strolled out in a hunch to consider the last statement; "all this thing you've been telling me—"

"Certainly," responded the Western man; "at least it is a modification of what I saw in a Dakota paper that was wrapped around a pair of shoes last night. I didn't dare put it as strong as the paper did, for no future may be fairly predicted upon the past. I feel that it may be safely claimed that I present to you the name of a gentleman, who, in the majority of life, will rise as high in stature as the others, the others, the politician of the day as the loftiest peak of his mountain home rears its head above the valley beneath. And if one who is destined to win a place in his country's glory temple, and in the hearts of his people—I refer to John D. White, of Manchester, Ky."

Primer Lessons.

(Sabbath School.)

I.

This is a young man. His face is long and there is a hunted glare in his eyes. He is wearing a coat of two dollars and seventy-five cents in his trouser pocket and hurries by the Jeweler's. He is thinking of his best friend, and he is expecting him to give him a Christmas present. The young man is willing, but he has not
